

ASIAN STUDIES MINOR

Interdisciplinary Minor

Over half of the world's population lives in Asia, a region of remarkable cultural, ethnic, political, and economic diversity. Asian Studies at Washington College provides an excellent complement to multiple majors, providing an interdisciplinary focus on the study of Asia through language and additional academic fields. Minors may complete up to half of their required coursework at one of Washington College's four exchange partnerships in Asia—Hong Kong, China; Seoul, South Korea; and/or Tokyo, Japan. At least half of the required coursework must be taken either through a Washington College faculty-led short-term abroad program in Asia or on campus with Washington College faculty.

The Asian Studies minor at Washington College is an interdisciplinary minor designed to foster a multidisciplinary understanding of Asia. In accordance with the larger College-wide mission to develop in students "habits of analytic thought and clear communication," students choosing this minor will develop capacities for critical analysis, clear writing, and effective communication in a global and cross-cultural setting. Minors will acquire basic knowledge about Asian nations, past and present—including important historical and cultural events and study of an Asian language and are encouraged to travel abroad to Asia for a short-term summer or semester-long program.

All students intending to pursue the minor must meet with the director to design a program of study within the minor requirements. It is also expected that the student will continue to consult with the director in determining the best available courses to fulfill the minor requirements any given semester.

Asian Studies Minor Requirements

No more than 16 credits from one subject may count toward the minor. Twelve of these credits must be from Washington College or a Washington College faculty-led short-term study abroad program; also no more than twelve credits from Study Abroad can be applied to the minor. Additionally, one 4-credit course that is not solely devoted to Asia but with substantial Asian content may be included toward the minor, with permission of the minor Director.

<sup>1</sup> One 4 credit course in an Asian language; for students whose native language is an Asian language, an appropriate 4 credit course may be substituted with permission of the minor Director. Students can take all four Chinese language classes (101,102,201,202) to count for the minor; in this case, they only need 2 more classes from the list to complete the minor.
